GEC 608: ETHICS

GEC 608

ETHICS

PREFACE

This course pack is developed to support the learning objectives of GEC 608: Ethics under the General Education Curriculum. With an emphasis on moral awareness, ethical behavior, and responsible decision-making in social, cultural, and personal contexts, it introduces students to the core ideas and principles of ethics.

The contents of this material are organized into structured modules that discuss moral standards, dilemmas, freedom, culture, feelings, and ethical theories. Students are taught to think critically, consider their beliefs, and comprehend how ethical frameworks influence moral judgments through lectures, exercises, reflections, and practical applications.

The goal of this course pack is to help students develop into more moral thinkers and ethically aware individuals, enabling them to make informed, wise, and responsible choices. In the end, it aims to assist students in developing into morally upright people who can live moral lives and make valuable contributions to society.
