RATIONALE

Traditional educational framework in the Philippines has been drastically disrupted due to COVID-19 pandemic. Due to the pandemic, many colleges and universities were affected that led to forced shut down. The enormous effect of pandemic has affected the academic and administrative operations of the state colleges and universities.

Despite the said challenges, many private and government institutions thrived to meet the gaps. For this reason, Northern Bukidnon State College geared to ascertain challenges, coping mechanisms, and stories of resilience amidst the pandemic in collaboration with 10 primordial Higher Education Institutions (HEIs) in Mindanao through the research project, “Building More Resilient HEIs in Mindanao”. These reputable institutions are namely; Agusan del Sur State College of Agriculture and Technology (ASSCAT), Ateneo de Zamboanga University, Camiguin Polytechnic State College, Davao del Sur State College,, La Salle University, Opol Community College, St. Michael’s College of Iligan, Philippine College Foundation, San Isidro College, and Tagoloan Community College.

This research has been conducted to support Commission on Higher Education and respond to CHED’s mandates related to CMO no. 32 s. 2021 related to the readiness of HEIs in the midst of pandemic in consonance with local and regional development goals, and Ambisyon Natin 2040.

Collaboration among various HEIs in Mindanao embarks fruition of milestones to attain excellent leadership, innovation, academic programs, and engrave resilient network to combat future challenges, meet 21st century demands, and become centers of excellence and development in this VUCAD world.
